

KLONDYKE SECTION IS FORGING TO THE FRONT

The Klondyke section of the Divide district is forging to the front by leaps and bounds, and is at present commanding the attention of a great many Tonopah mining men.

The main cause of the substantial little boom is the recent uncovering of a large body of silver ore in the Golden State mine, control of which was obtained last fall by Charles E. Knox, well-known mining man. The magnitude of this ore found has not yet been developed, but the length of the shoot is 70 feet already and prospecting in several places has exposed 18 feet of ore that samples better than $24 per ton. The values are mainly silver. Regular shipments are being made from this property to a local mill, last week's haulage aggregating 75 tons.

The Ben Hur Divide Mining company recently purchased a group of claims along the strike of the same system being developed by the Golden State. The ore being mined are not high-grade and are almost by the Ben Hur is identical with the surface ore of Golden State, a of Tonopah which are now taking chrysolite contact whose peroxide lating waters have highly silicified and mineralized the rhyolite. Good values also penetrate the line.

Regular shipments are being made and the profits from the shipments from the original Klondyke property rather than by assay certificates and prospecting, locating and trace alone.

WILL REVIVE LIFE OF WONDER MINING CAMP

The Reese River Revelle prints the following story on Wonder again becoming active. The mining property mentioned, the Spider and Wasp, was purchased by Tonopah people and operated for some time.

Eli Cann, the Fallon attorney, spent several days in Austin this week closing up the affairs of the Thomas Dunston estate. Mr. Cann was formerly located at the now defunct town of Wonder, and acquired some mining property there. Among his holdings was an interest in the famous Spider and Wasp property. This ground at the time Wonder was on the boom, was considered one of the great prospects of the district, but the bank failures took with them the treasury of the company, and it was unable to proceed with development work. A house and other machinery was on the ground, and when the property was sold to satisfy a judgment, Mr. Cann became one of the owners. The Manning Brothers, Thomas and George, were heavily interested in Wonder properties adjoining the Spider and Wasp, and purchased the ground from the new owners and have consolidated it with four other properties with the intention of making a big company of the whole.

Mr. Cann says that from what he knows of the property and of the men who now own it, there is going to be a great deal of work going on at the old camp before many years have passed. The new owners are men who do not hesitate to spend their money in developing property in which they have confidence, and as they have paid actual money, and considerable of it, for the Spider and Wasp property, he is convinced that they intend to go ahead and open up the very promising ledge. The Spider and Wasp property consists of five claims, all patented, and with the other pieces of ground included in the consolidation, there will be an immense acreage. In the boom days of the camp leasers shipped a great deal of high-grade ore, taken from near the surface. The company was going at it on a large scale, and had sunk a shaft to a depth of 200 feet, with the intention of crosscutting to the big ledge, but the smash in the banks came just in time to render their work futile and nothing has been done since that time further than to take care of the machinery.

The Spider and Wasp property is about seven miles from the Nevada Wonder property, which yielded such a fine profit to its owners, but which has been abandoned as worked out, and when the work is begun at the old place, known as Victor, it will probably build an entirely new town.

"When the work is going good, there is no doubt among those familiar with the country that it will become a vast mining proposition, and yield some big fortunes to those who are showing their confidence in it. This property has a romantic history. The original owner, Dave Craig, sold it to the Spider and Wasp company for $15,000. About the time the failures caused the shutdown, Craig had spent his small fortune, and was ready to go to work, and as it was not known how bad the bank failures were, he was given a job as watchman of the property which he had formerly owned. The company went to pieces and after a year or two Craig sued for his wages as watchman, and got judgment in the United States court.

The property was sold to satisfy the judgment, and Craig bought it in, and with Mr. Cann, who was his attorney, again became the owner of the ground, with all the improvements. He has now sold it again, receiving part of his pay in money, and retaining an interest in the company and it is not at all improbable that it will make him rich.

BIG FEATURE AT THE BUTLER TODAY

The attraction at the Butler today will be "Under Crimson Skies," a thrilling romance of love and adventure on the high seas. This is a big picture—a rousing, stirring picture—a romantic picture. A story that sweeps you up out of your humdrum life and carries you off to sea and marvelous adventure of the kind that thrills you through and through. To fight with a strong, silent Elmo Lincoln against the perils of mutiny on the high seas—to fall in love with a beautiful woman and sacrifice liberty for her sake—to make a miraculous escape from the fabled dungeons of a southern republic and become master of a colony of beach-combers and conquer them by might of brain and fist, and then to save the one woman from a terrible fate in the midst of red revolution. Spectacularly acted by a great company in outdoor scenes of tempest and sunshine that have seldom been equaled. Love, adventure, thrills, wondrous scenery in a tropic clime, glorious sweep of the sea, the life of lawless lives and lawless loves, this picture has everything.

Tomorrow, Constantine Talmadge in "The Perfect Woman."

GERMAN-MADE TOOLS FLOOD THE MARKET

(By Associated Press) ROTTERDAM, Feb. 21.—German manufacturers of steel tools have practically driven American tools out of the market in Holland, according to statistics compiled by the American consul general. Previous to the recent industrial renaissance in Germany, nearly 90 per cent of this trade was in the hands of Americans.

The change is largely due, according to Consul General Anderson, to the favorable money exchange conditions prevailing so long as the mark is low and the dollar high.
